

Management Change in Florida

New General Manager at LASER COMPONENTS Pyro Group

Lance Feldman has been the new General Manager at LASER COMPONENTS Pyro Group in Stuart, Florida, since the beginning of the year. Since the start of the Pyro Group in July 2014, he has been responsible for the production of pyroelectric detectors. He was also primarily responsible for the development of the new production facility and developed all its organisational and operational procedures. Feldman contributed significantly to making his company a successful member of the exclusive circle of manufacturers for DLATGS-based pyroelectric detectors.

In addition to the production facility, the LASER COMPONENTS Pyro Group also employs an inventive R&D team. Their innovative spirit has led to the development of the LD2100 series of pyroelectric detectors, in which an integrated differential amplifier provides an unprecedented signal-to-noise ratio.
